

Fatma Hussain Alloghani

Ministry of Health and Prevention, United Arab Emirates

Fatma Hussain Alloghani is the Director of the Epidemics and Surveillance Department at the Ministry of Health and Prevention in the United Arab Emirates. She holds an MD and Arab board in public health and is a consultant in public health. Alloghani has worked in several positions within the Ministry of Health and Prevention in the UAE, including as the Director of the Preventive Medicine Department from 2012 to March 2021, during which a new organization reform was implemented. Her current role involves overseeing the surveillance of communicable diseases and outbreak preparedness, response, and management. Alloghani is a member of the GCDC surveillance network and the Higher Technical Committee for Pandemics in the UAE